

*Starving children
find food, hope,
and even love through Dove Foundation.*

Hope Arrives on the

"Pick me! Pick me!"

begged the little Romanian boy, as he tugged the American's sleeve. These were the only English words he knew – the only foreign words any of the orphans knew. But they were powerful words. Because in this orphanage, adoption could mean the difference between life and death.

In another orphanage a tiny baby lay dying... too young to know how to ask for help. Dozens of needy infants just like her lay quiet and wan, in row upon row of anonymous bassinets.

The first time the Americans came to the aid of this shelter, its pantry held just one cup of formula for more than eighty infants, toddlers, and children. When the director of the orphanage saw the boxes of food and medicine brought by Dove Foundation, she broke down and cried.

The miracle of caring.

Since 1994, director OrvaLee Farris has organized aid for children in crisis around the world. Using funds from their own savings, OrvaLee and her associates have spent tens of thousands of dollars to purchase critical supplies for starving children in Romania, India, Africa, and Russia.

Hundreds of children are alive today thanks to the efforts of OrvaLee and the Dove Foundation.

Its mission is simple, but unique.

If a child is hungry, Dove Foundation will provide food. If a child is cold, it will supply clothing. If a child is sick, Dove Foundation will bring medicine.

But more than that, Dove Foundation seeks long-term solutions to the child's situation. "How can this child get food once we're gone?" "How can his basic needs be met?" "How can we eliminate the suffering?"

By focusing on long-term solutions, Dove Foundation can do more than apply a band-aid to a child's physical and emotional wounds. By first feeding the body, Dove Foundation can help a starving child become healthy and strong. Then, by "feeding its circumstance," Dove Foundation can help move the child into a safer situation.

Throughout the world, thousands of hurting children await our help. We can bring them health and hope on the wings of a Dove. Would you be willing to help?

